Consultation on Simplifying the EU Taxonomy Launched

Dear Sir or Madam,

The European Commission has published a Call for Evidence for the revision of the delegated acts for the climate and environmental taxonomy (see Annex). This consultation forms the basis for the planned adoption of a revised taxonomy in the second quarter of 2026.

According to the Commission, this initiative responds to comprehensive feedback from market participants, who have particularly criticised the complex technical screening criteria (TSC) and the unclear "Do No Significant Harm" (DNSH) requirements.

The Commission plans to make the taxonomy more practical, legally secure, and cost-effective through targeted amendments, without introducing new political elements. The focus of the revision is on eliminating inconsistencies, simplifying the technical screening criteria (TSC), and aligning them with updated EU legislation.

The consultation is open until 5 December 2025. The final drafts of the delegated acts will be subject to a public consultation for four weeks prior to their adoption next year.

We are available for any questions you may have. Please contact us by 1 December 2025 at the latest to discuss the possible preparation of a joint statement.

Yours sincerely,

Christian König
